

Tired of the same old LAW AND ETHICS workshop?

Join us for this dynamic & interactive workshop
and earn
6 CEUs to fulfill your law
and ethics requirement.
Sunday, April 7, 2019

Participants will:

- * identify four uses of touch in their private practice;
- * describe three types of touch in therapeutic practice;
- * identify three types of boundary considerations pertaining to touch and;
- * identify three countertransference issues that arise with the use of touch.

Most people leave their clinical training believing that it is illegal to touch a client.
Most of us receive little to no education about the value and ethics of touch.

THE ETHICS OF TOUCH

"If a therapist decides to touch a given patient, s/he must do so in a thoughtful manner and must be willing to accept responsibility for the patient's interpretation of the touch. Likewise, if the therapist decides not to touch, there must be a similar willingness to accept responsibility for the meanings that the patient will assign to the absence of a natural form of human contact." (The Therapist, March/April 2011, Guest & Parker).

Intended for licensed & pre-licensed mental health professions & master & doctoral-level clinicians, physicians & psychiatric nurses.
